"All the world's a stage," and Kinston is featured as the focal point of this drama in the 1962 edition of the Kay Aitch Ess. You, as residents of Kinston, are living a drama begun two hundred years ago when the founders of Kinston initiated the first act. As the years pass, each generation adds another scene. The 1961-62 yearbook staff has endeavored to picture for you historic scenes of Kinston's growth and prosperity. At the same time we feature you as central players in this drama in which you reach the greatest individual fulfillment of which you are capable in a society which is expanding daily at accelerated speed. With great enthusiasm we present to you the 1962 volume of the Kay Aitch Ess, hoping that you will augment the drama of Kinston and lead it "Forward in Prosperity"—even into the age of cosmonauts and astronauts which is now dawning like thunder in the modern world.

Dedication

"Good, the more communicated, more abundant grows."

—MILTON

Once in a while a person appears in our lives who transfers to all around him the knowledge that honor and courage are not dead virtues. The Kay Aitch Ess honors a man who daily practices these principles and communicates them to the people with whom he deals. Quiet, unassuming, yet indomitable, he spurs students to do their best. His integrity is an inspiration, not only to his classroom students but also to the boys with whom he works in the ball clubs.

Though his winning teams are a source of great pride to Grainger High School, we honor him even more for good he communicates always as he works with us.

We are proud to give you Mr. Paul Jones, citizen, teacher, coach, friend. To him we dedicate the thirty-seventh volume of Kay Aitch Ess.

Historic Kinston is a city of which we are proud. The story goes back to William Heritage, who in 1740 came from New Bern to Adkin Banks, now Kinston. By 1762 the settlement was well populated. Richard Caswell, instigated by the settlers, drew up an act authorizing the establishment of a town. This act was passed in 1762 with Francis McLevean, Richard Caswell, Simon Bright, John Shine, and David Gordon as trustees. At first the town was called Kingston for King George III. However, in 1784, following the Revolution, an act was adopted which dropped the g and changed the name to Kinston. From that time, also, Kinston was a full-fledged county seat and began to make its importance felt as a commercial center. In fact, it continued as the county seat of the new county Lenoir, when, in 1791, Dobbs was abolished, and Lenoir and Glasgow (Greene) Counties were formed.

Thus Kinston has progressed "Forward in Prosperity" through the years, fulfilling magnificently the motto on its Coat of Arms.

in Prosperity

Flag and Coat of Arms of Kinston

Because it was established under a royal charter, Kinston has been entitled to a Coat of Arms ever since the city was founded. However, nothing was done to secure it until 1958. At that time Marion A. Parrott and Meriwether Lewis wrote to Sir George Bellew, K.C.V.O., Garter Principal King of Arms, in an effort to obtain a Coat of Arms for Kinston. On April 14, 1960, a draft of the Coat of Arms arrived and was approved by Mayor Guy Elliott and the City Council.

The Coat of Arms is quite beautiful, the shield containing a horizontal band across the middle with a crown that has the founding date of Kinston written across it. This important date is 1762. On one side of the shield is a female figure holding the horn of plenty, symbolizing prosperity. On the other side is an American Indian of the Neuse tribe. He is smoking a pipe of peace. The motto of the Coat of Arms is "Forward in Prosperity," foretelling the prosperous future of Kinston, North Carolina.

KINSTON DURING CIVIL WAR

As the residents of Kinston emerged into the middle of the Nineteenth Century, they had no idea they were entering the most troubled era in the history of the town and surrounding territory. The present was pleasant and the future looked good. Consequently the people here had every reason for optimism.

Not long after, Kinston, along with all the other Southern towns and cities, was involved in a civil war fighting against the North. Although there were only two major battles fought here, the destruction was high.

To keep Kinston from being captured by the Yankees, the Confederates destroyed one of their gunboats, the "Ram Neuse," sinking it in the Neuse River where it had been used. Even today at low tide one may still see the hulk of the sunken ship, battered relic of a long-past era.

Mayor Guy Elliott

In this year of our Lord 1961, Kinstonians have every right to be proud of the heritage of our City since 1762 when the first Charter was granted making Kingston a body politic, located on the banks of the Neuse, and described in said Charter as being a goodly place for commerce and trade and home building for its citizens. It has played no little part in helping to build a great State and Nation.

The pages of history have recorded many, many instances where the citizens of Kinston rendered unusual and high-type service in the hours of need to preserve our liberties and homes.

So the heritage is one to be proud of, and I urge and implore the present-day citizens of our community not to let our forbears down but to continue to do those things that will build a more healthful and prosperous community where job opportunities are available, where schools are provided, where people assemble to worship Almighty God, and to live together with due reverence to our creator and to our fellow citizens.

Yes! Kinstonians have every right to be proud of our heritage and should be encouraged to make our City a better place in which to live.

Sincerely,

City of Kinston

To the Students of Grainger High School

Appearing on the front of the 1962-1963 Kay Aitch Ess is the Coat of Arms of Kinston, awarded to the city by the College of Arms in London, England. This is the first time in five hundred years of existence that the College of Arms has made such a presentation.

The center of the Coat of Arms is the traditional shield which is divided horizontally into three parts, the center an embattled ermine "fesse" or band with a white background. In the center of this white band is an ancient three pointed gold crown. The ermine and crown allude to Kinston's original name of Kingston. The embattlement of this "fesse" shows its civic and residential character. In the upper band of this shield, on a red background, is centered a gold lion "rampant" for courage and fortitude. He stands between two sprigs of golden tobacco, which refers to Kinston's principal industry. In the lower third, on a gold background, is a sword and an arrow in red, in saltire or crossed, reminiscent of the Tuscarora War. The blue and white "wavy barry" at the base point symbolize the River Neuse upon which the Town of Kinston is situated.

On the traditional helmet and black and gold mantling is the Crest, consisting of a black unicorn's head, which was on Governor Dobbs' Coat of Arms. The unicorn was holding a gold sprig of tobacco in its mouth. This black unicorn issues from a "mural crown," symbol of township and civic estate. It is charged with the important date 1762 in gold. This date is the year that the original Town of Kingston was established by an act of the Colonial Assembly and signed by the Royal Colonial Governor, Arthur Dobbs. It was named in honor of King George III. Supporting this "mural crown" and resting on top of the shield is a black helm or helmet in profile, with vizor closed, signifying that the civic estate is of esquires or gentlemen.

On either side of the shield are the traditional Supporters. On the dexter, or right, is a female figure, properly dressed in a silver gown with a blue cape holding a cornucopia, representing prosperity. This figure also appears on the Seal of the State of North Carolina. On the sinister or left is an American Indian, properly dressed, a brave of the Neuse Tribe, smoking a "pipe of peace," expressive of the relationship between the English settlers and the local Indian tribe.

On the Base is the motto "Forward in Prosperity" which it is hoped expressed the future.

Meriwether Lewis

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

The First Baptist Church, built in 1857, was located on the northwest corner of Bright and McLevean Streets. In October, 1891, the church building was moved to the northwest corner of Gordon and McLevean streets. After a new brick church was constructed in 1900, the new building was sold to the members of the Negro Presbyterian Church. The original bell rings out clearly today from the church tower, summoning people to worship at the present location of the church on the corner of Dennis and Thompson streets.

TOWER HILL

This house was originally owned by William Heritage, 1707 to 1769, clerk of the Assembly for thirty years. This was the site of the appointed capital of North Carolina from 1758-1762.

SECOND METHODIST CHURCH

This structure was used as a hospital for Confederate soldiers. General Ransom kept his horses stabled in the basement in 1863.

The Washington home now stands at 411 North East Street. The Washington family manufactured shoes for the Confederate Army.

KINSTON, A CITY OF PROGRESS

Kinston is located in the center of the Coastal Plains of eastern North Carolina at an elevation of forty-seven feet above sea level, approximately one hundred miles west of the Atlantic Ocean and east of rolling hills of the Piedmont.

Kinston was established in 1762, nearly ten years before the Revolutionary War, under the name of Kingston. Since then, great and rapid changes have been made.

The present day population of Kinston is 25,400. The people elected Guy Elliott to serve as their mayor. The city council is made up of prominent men of our town who were elected by the people to serve their community.

There are more than 60 industries operating in Kinston. More than 13,000 persons are employed in Kinston's industries, with an average weekly payroll of over $350,000. The tobacco industry accounts for 14 auction warehouses (with a total floor space of 1,529,628 square feet) and six stemming and redrying plants. Serving Kinston are five sets of buyers, representing nine major tobacco companies.

The newest major industry in Kinston is the Du Pont plant located seven miles north of the city of Highway 11. The Du Pont plant employs a total of 2,000 people, with a total of thirteen acres of floor space on the roof alone.

The educational plan for Kinston and Lenoir County is well rounded with sixteen public schools, two parochial schools, a state training school, and a Baptist orphanage.

There are five highways converging on Kinston; two railroads and twelve motor lines provide freight service. Passenger service is available by plane or bus.

Two newspapers, a daily and a weekly, serve Kinston. Also there are three radio stations in operation locally, covering all major networks.

There are two modern hospitals with a total bed capacity of 175. These facilities provide ample space for those who need medical attention.

Kinston has a total of 45 churches, of which 42 are Protestant, 2 are Roman Catholic, and one Hebrew.

Municipal plants and private sources provide the city with electric power and water supply (from deep artesian wells). Gas is supplied by the Kinston Gas Company.

As anyone can see, Kinston is truly a city of progress in every respect.

Your city has its memories and mysteries, its pleasant years and its days of disaster. One of those pleasant days was in the spring of 1763. The place had just had its name changed from Atkin's Bank to Kingston, but it was not yet really a town. The 150 acres were partly plantation farmland and partly primeval forest, bordered by bramble briars and broom sedge. In the northwest corner of the field, near the spot where Heritage Street and Blount Street would cross, an ancient Spanish oak, called the Liveoak, towered above a small house of worship called St. Matthew's Chapel. Some 200 yards to the south, a tobacco warehouse stood, a busy wharf jutting out from it into the river's edge. A considerable crowd of men, women, and children were milling aimlessly around, engaged in friendly greeting and amiable chatter. Others were arriving. Major Croom, a wealthy planter lately migrated down from Virginia, made a spectacular arrival with his lady in a rather ornate riding chair borne on the shoulders of four stout Guinea Negroes.

Conspicuous in the throng was dignified old Mr. William Herritage, a wicker basket in one hand and a long parchment roll in the other. One noted, also, his dainty, diminutive daughter, Mrs. Sarah Caswell, and her tall husband, Richard. Mr. David Gordon, Attorney, late barrister of the Court of King's Bench in London, but more recently appointed one of the city fathers of Kingston, had brought his family up from New Bern. He passed out copies of the GAZETTE, North Carolina's leading and only newspaper.

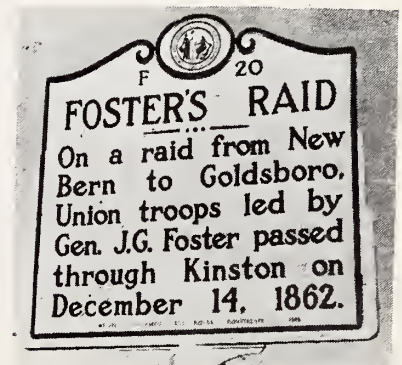

The smell of barbecue cooking over hickory coals gave the atmosphere the final proof that this was indeed a festive occasion. It was "the day of drawing lots," as the GAZETTE advertised. In Mr. Herritage's wicker basket were carefully numbered paper squares, each representing a particular one-half acre as the same tract appeared numbered on the plat of the town which Mr. Herritage had mapped on his parchment roll. The purchasers would get their lots by a game of blind chance.

George Koonce and George Kornegay could remember this Kinston area when the wild Indians held it. Each of them had been the sole survivor when his family had been massacred by the Tuscarora Indians in 1711. The Indian Village of Coerntha had stood on the very site of this Kinston. Baron de Graffenreid had been held prisoner here. The young boys listening to the tales of the Indian War could not know that they would live through times equally stirring and dangerous. The Dobbs County Regiment was yet to go to the battles of Alamance and Moore's Creek Bridge. It was yet to send its quotas to the Continental Army of the Revolution. Nor could they on the "day of drawing the lots" imagine the happier future time in the autumn of 1781 when word would come of the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown or the "long party" at Newington-on-the-Hill, lasting several weeks, to which Governor Richard Caswell invited all veterans of the Revolution who came home from the war to or by way of Kinston.

These are just a few of the memories of the city, brief glimpses of the historic heritage of your old hometown.

KINSTON HIGH SCHOOL 1924

GRAINGER HIGH SCHOOL 1927

Greetings:

Each year the appearance of the Annual is an occasion which is anticipated with much pleasure. New features indicative of a high degree of initiative, teamwork, and diligence are always noted.

A yearbook serves many useful purposes. Those who work with photography, format, and the written word receive valuable training and experience. All who use the book have at their disposal a useful reference source and a record to which they may refer with pride. The happy and profitable years spent in a good high school are attractively recorded.

For these reasons, all of the annuals of former years occupy a prominent space in my own library. Kay-Aitch-Ess 1962 will be added to the others with genuine appreciation to you who have made it possible.

Hearty congratulations are conveyed to you.

Sincerely yours,

J. P. Booth, Superintendent
Kinston City Schools

Dear Students:

We are extremely proud of Grainger High School and its many accomplishments. The spirit of our school is at an all-time high. The students are cooperative, the faculty excellent. I, as principal, am proud to be a part of this institution.

As you study these carefully prepared pages, many wonderful moments of the past year will be relived. Congratulations to the staff of the Kay-Aitch-Ess for this fine publication, which marks its thirty-ninth anniversary.

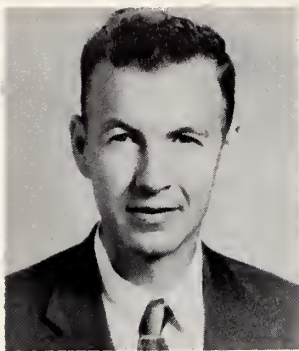

Best wishes to the members of the Senior Class, to whom high school will soon be just a memory. As you move onward to other levels of development, we will follow you with great interest and pride. To the underclassmen, be sure to complete your high school education, taking advantage of every opportunity for full development while in high school. America today needs well-informed and educated citizens as never before.

Sincerely,

As seniors in high school we close the book on a wonderful chapter in our lives. Today we are seniors. Tomorrow we hold the future of the world in our hands. Some of us will further our education in colleges and universities. Others will tackle new jobs almost as soon as they hold their high school diplomas! In any case, all of us face the future with happy expectations that we can fill places in our country which will be worthwhile. Daily we hear of crises. Astronauts and cosmonauts enter space. Alien doctrines flourish in many parts of the world today. New nations emerge almost overnight.

Yes, we are entering a world fraught with danger, but in spite of all, a challenging one. It is our hope that we can meet our responsibilities with integrity and courage, contributing always the best that is in us to our community and our country. Our motto might well be, as Kinston's is, "Forward in Prosperity" toward new frontiers.

We shouldered the responsibility of new subjects and increased knowledge of old ones. We dreamed up new money-making projects and staged a fabulous Junior-Senior Prom. We now wear our class rings. Not until now, however, as the seniors solemnly march down the aisle, do we begin to realize that soon our community will be depending upon us. We, who have one high school year left, must increase our knowledge so that we, too, will be able to fill the role in the future that we will be asked to play in an expanding world.

As sophomores we did not mind dissecting earthworms, frogs, et cetra. Chasing insects was only a diversion for us. Reading Julius Caesar was fun, although his Commentaries proved almost too much. We had barrels of fun at the Sadie Hawkins Dance. Most of all we were so proud to sit behind the wheel of a car for the first time, our first driver's license safely in our pockets.

All of these activities meant we were growing up—about to assume our places in the new world. We knew that we were learning to spearhead new horizons on a new frontier.

Only last September we entered the doors of Grainger for the first time. This year was a new and exciting adventure for our class. We were the youngest here, but still a part of all that went on. We accepted new responsibilities. The part we are playing in the drama of Kinston has begun to take shape. One day we shall become full-fledged citizens of this community sharing the privileges and responsibilities which are the rights of people in a free community.

WOMAN'S CLUB

TUESDAY AFTERNOON CLUB

Activities

Good citizenship for the future is being taught in many of the clubs of Grainger High School. In these clubs students learn the valuable lessons of leadership. The reward is that they learn to co-operate with others toward a given end. The potential leaders of tomorrow will perhaps arise from these organizations that are dedicated to serving others.

The Student Council members seek improvement in school spirit and citizenship. The Future Teachers of America encourages and prepares young people to enter teaching, the Future Business Leaders of America develops better business leaders of tomorrow, and the Future Homemakers of America creates an interest in home economics. The Science Club prepares boys and girls for the study of medicine, electronics, and astronomy. The Future Nurses Club creates an interest among the girls for the nursing profession. The National Forensic League promotes an interest in public speaking, giving students an opportunity to speak and debate both publicly and among themselves. The Junior Latin Club and Sr. Latin Club create a higher interest in Latin. The "K" Club represents our highest type athlete, honoring those who have "what it takes" in perseverance, sportsmanship, and athletic ability. The Pep Club does their best in encouraging sportsmanship throughout the students. The Sr. Tri-Hi-Y, Sr. Hi-Y, Jr. Tri-Hi-Y, and Ki-Hi-Y create, maintain, and extend throughout the home, school, and community high standards of Christian character while the National Honor Society's motto is "Character through Service."

The goals of these clubs are of the highest purpose. They serve the individual members in the best possible way by carefully preparing them to become responsible, well-rounded citizens.

Music Preserves Tradition

It is through music that ideals and traditions pass from one generation to the next. Grainger High School, through its excellent Music Department, has been able to instill in its participants a love of the great music of the past. The spirit of freedom, love of the past and anticipation of the future appear in the outstanding music of the Choral and Band departments. Nothing so arouses a surge of patriotism as a brisk military march or young voices raised in song.

"If we could have devised an arrangement for providing everybody with music in their homes, perfect in quality, unlimited in quantity, suited to every mood, and beginning and ceasing at will, we should have considered the limit of human felicity already attained."

Edward Bellamy

Mr. Lowery

The Grainger High School Band represented its student body well this year at football games, parades, concerts, and contests. Mr. John Lowery, in his first year as band director, introduced the members to a new type of football show in Kinston, the precision drill. The band responded favorably to this change and presented Kinston a quick-stepping, well-knit, blowing marching group. The concert band was divided into two small sections; the varsity and cadet groups. They each worked hard on difficult pieces of music, and this work showed up in public performances. This year's band is a growing organization, and with Mr. Lowery as leader will reach many more goals in future years.

Mr. Harry Shipman

After thirteen years dedicated to teaching band in the Kinston schools, Mr. Harry Shipman resigned from his position to accept a well-earned promotion to a larger school. From the beginning of band at Harvey or Lewis Schools to the date of graduation, Mr. Shipman instilled in his students an appreciation and high standard of musicianship. The accomplishments of his bands at concerts will be remembered for many years by lovers of band music. Mr. Shipman was not only a fine director, but also a friend who took an interest in his student's activities. The highlight of his tenure in Kinston was the spring concert of 1961 in which he performed George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue," after which the high school band presented him a silver service.

Mr. Fitzgerald

Progress in the Grainger High Choral Department has been outstanding under the able leadership of its new director, Mr. William Fitzgerald. All classes—Workshop, Varsity Choir, Glee Club, Mixed Chorus, and Grainger High Singers attended the music contest held at East Carolina College in February. The annual Christmas concert, a great success, was followed by the Winter Formal Concert in March and the Spring "Pop" Concert in May. Besides performing for various civic clubs and conventions, the Grainger High Singers presented an outstanding concert at Camp Lejeune and also the Caswell Rehabilitation Center.

The reward of the year's work was the Singer's annual tour, a fitting end to a great year. Thanks to Mr. Fitzgerald for a splendid job!

Athletics at Grainger High School

The Athletic Department of Grainger High School does a great deal in developing the character of the students. Although winning is stressed, winning in the right way is stressed more. Sportsmanship and fair play have precedence over high scores. The students want and help build good teams by displaying a spirit of fair play. A debt of gratitude is owed to the directors of this department, the teams, and all those who contributed in any way to the great teams of Grainger High School.

Varsity Football

Having practiced diligently through the hot summer months, the 1961 Grainger High School Football team had a spirit and a team which served Grainger High School well. They compiled a 7-3 record and were second in the Northeastern Conference. The Grainger High School Red Devils also placed two boys, Ricky Leggett and Joe Russell, on the all conference squad. Other Kinston players were given honorable mention. This year's team has once again shown Grainger High School the top flight football which she has had in the past.

Wrestling

The 1961-62 Devil Matmen are an experienced group of wrestlers. The team has many lettermen. All of the Devil Matmen have done an outstanding job in competing with their opponents. This is the fourth year coach George Thompson has had a wrestling team at Grainger High School. Credit is due to the coaches, G. Thompson and R. Holmes, for the improvement in record each year. The grapplers are led in 1961-62 by Tri-Captains, Harrison Smith, Rickey Leggett, and Jim Sanderson.

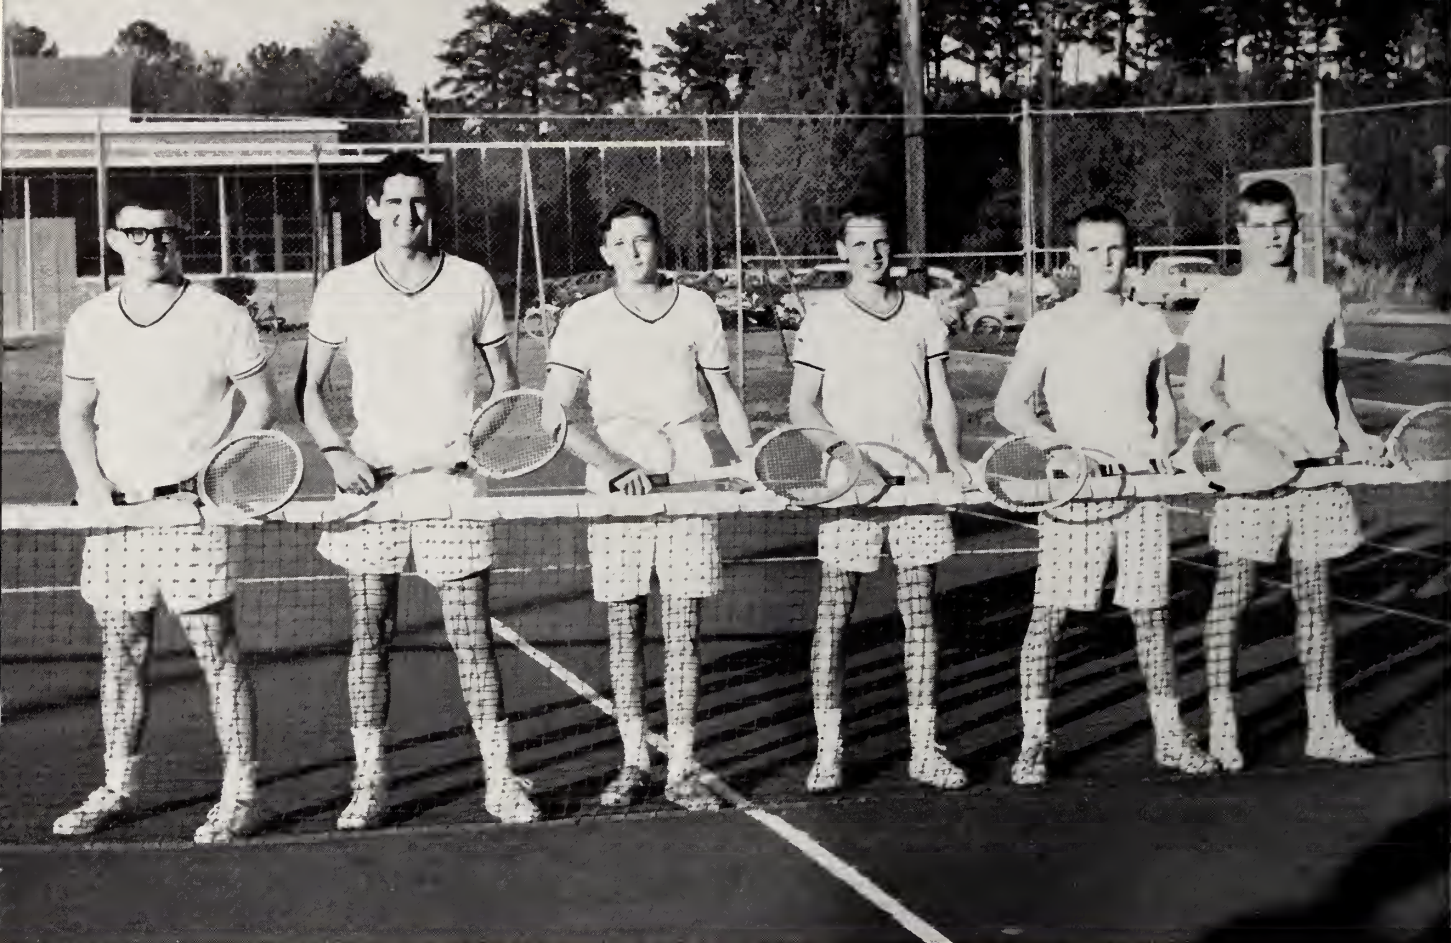

Kinston's Heavy Weight contender, Dick McClain, goes through the motion of a reverse on the 167 pound weight contender, Ricky Leggett.

Co-captains, Harrison Smith and Ricky Leggett, demonstrate the referee's position, which starts the second and third periods of a wrestling match.

Ricky Leggett throws his opponent, Harrison Smith, with a wing roll to gain the advantage from the bottom in the referee's position.

Tennis

Working hard to give Grainger High School a fine tennis team, the members have put forth fine effort and determination. They and their coach should be commended for this fine show of sportsmanship.

Harrison Smith displays, as pictured, his form in serving to his opponents. Smith was number one man for 1961.

Jimmy Capps, senior netman, displays the back-hand swing used much by tennis players.

Joe Russell, number two man, shows the forehand used during the matches by the tennis players.

Track

The 1961 Cindermen were real champions. As a matter of fact several of its members were state champions. To produce a winning team took hard work and constant practice. Among the fine runners for Kinston were Adger Stokes and Billy Taylor who went to the state tournament. They starred in the low hurdles. Kinston also had one of the state's best high school discus throwers, Joe Maguire. The Cindermen also had other boys who were among the top in the Northeastern Conference. The Cindermen have improved each spring and have made Kinston one of the top schools in track competition.

Joe Maguire whirled the discus for the 1961 track team. Joe demonstrates his ability in throwing the discus in the adjacent picture.

THE EXTRA MARGIN

This year is the 200th birthday of the City of Kinston. What a shock the first Kinstonians of 1762 would get if they could walk along the streets of the community we call home today. Our city founders would blink their eyes in disbelief when they saw our clothing, shelter, transportation, communications, health and welfare advances, and our manufacturing ability.

The changes in Kinston, and cities like it everywhere, have come about, at least in part, through advances in the amazing world of chemistry. These advances have been the margin between comfort and doing without. Chemical fertilizers and insecticides have been the difference between the pounds and bushels in agriculture. From building materials, fabrics, and paints down to refrigerants for frozen foods, chemicals help make the modern home. In fact, look at most anything around you today; chemicals have contributed in some degree toward making it possible.

To be sure, it took many keen minds to fashion the chemical progress we take for granted as we observe our city's historical milestone this year. And it's going to take more skilled men and women to move on from here. In your lifetime alone, even more exciting things will be possible if today's graduates sharpen their minds and apply their ingenuity to the challenges ahead.
